Museum programs for educators

Workshops for Elementary Teachers

The two-hour time frame for our Quick-Learn workshops give educators new ideas and materials to build cross-curricular connections in a two-hour time frame, while infusing science and social studies units with tangible “stuff” to engage students. Educators can bring real-life objects into their classrooms to help students make connections to the world around them.

Monday March 14, 4:30-6:30 p.m. Backyard Birds. $15 includes all materials. Being able to identify even a few birds gives students personal satisfaction, increasing interest and further learning. Birds are good subjects for teaching science and ecology. Learn basic methods and receive ready-to-use activities that address standards in science and language arts for all grades.

And More.....

Saturday February 5, 10:00-2:00 or Sunday May 1, 10:00-2:00. Educator Open House. Museum programs for teachers are on display during these casual events. Discover details of upcoming exhibits. Pre-service and in-service teachers are encouraged. Open houses are free for educators and a guest; drop in any time during the Open House (no registration is required for Educator Open House events).

Saturday, April 9, all day. Desert Floor to Mountain Top: A Sense of Place Field Trip. Explore the history, ecology, geology, geography and prehistory of the inland valley, mountains and high desert through observation and discussion. Day-long trip, includes transportation.

Educators can register for a Quick-Learn workshop or field trip by calling 909-307-2669 x 252 or visiting the museum web site, www.sbcountymuseum.org, and clicking School Programs.
